Washington Avenue ext may cost Tighe $29,000

In the protracted battle between the Wilmington Planning Board and the Wilmington Board of Selectmen, over the possible construction of Washington Avenue extension, Jay Tighe, builder, may perhaps be described as being in the middle. Mr. Tighe is building homes off Glen Road, and the Planning Board wants him to construct Washington Avenue extension, so that there can be through auto traffic to Clark Street.

Tuesday night Tighe learned of the projected construction costs, as figured by Town Engineer Bob Higgins. The cost would be $29,000.

This would be for construction of the road by the town, in 1977, if the Town Meeting in 1976 voted in accordance with the Planning Board recommendations. Mr. Higgins told the Planning Board that he had in the costs a factor for inflation, and the cost of land damages, to abuttors.

Jay Tighe had figures which showed the cost to be only $3300. They had been prepared by his engineer, the Robert Anderson Company of North Reading, and did not include either land damages nor an estimate of inflation, but were for construction only.

After a somewhat long discussion, which included discussion of a pond near the Wildcat Railroad, the Planning Board voted, three to one to withhold the $15,500 in Tighe's bond which was to pay for construction of streets and sidewalks already completed. Higgins had attested that Tighe's cost of figures were correct.

The $15,500 was to have come from the $82,500 bond which Tighe posted last summer, based on costs estimated in May 1974.

Tighe will apparently have to raise money elsewhere, to pay the contractors who have been working on the streets in Glen Acres.

In addition to the $29,000 road cost there would be one of about $7 thousand to build a cul-de-sac, temporary or permanent.

Tighe was also told that there would be a cost of $30,000 for grading, in the ponding area next to the Wildcat Railroad tracks.

Joseph F. Courtney, Tighe's attorney, protested that the ponding area was not a part of the subdivision, and that the land had been given to the town, through the Conservation Commission. Robert Leahy of the Planning Board firmly replied that the pond was in the area approved by the Planning Board, that it showed on the plan, and that "this board approved of that plan."

It was after this statement that Leahy moved that the board not return the $15,500 which Tighe was seeking, from his bond. In the vote Bill Hooper was the one person who was against the motion. (Mr. Hanlon was absent from the meeting, Ed.).

Prior to the vote Tighe had told the Planning Board that he had expected to be finished around the pond area within a week. The proposed grading, it seemed, was a surprise to him.

Tighe had stated that the depth was to be ten to twelve feet, as of next spring. Leahy took exception to this, and stated that the pond in the Corum Meadows project was too deep, according to the Conservation Commission. Corum Meadows is a housing project controlled by Mr. Tighe.

There was much conversation about the excavation of peat in some areas, and other problems. Costs cited by Tighe were, in some instances over those cited by the Town Engineer, and when possible dredging project came up the chairman excused himself. "Dredging is beyond me - in my mind."

Attorney Courtney, commenting on the proposed cul-de-sacs, said that if should be possible to design them in a T shape. Chairman Harding agreed that there was a precedent, in Wilmington, for such a design.

$162,500 projected for sidewalks

The Wilmington Finance Committee and a group of Federal Gardens residents learned, Monday evening that the Board of Selectmen and Town Manager are proposing that $162,500 be spent on sidewalks during the coming year in Wilmington. The money would be for materials only, and not include labor costs.

Town Manager Sterling Morris told the Finance Committee that the town had never quite fulfilled in any year the projected $50,000 construction of sidewalks, and that it was felt that there was some work to be done. An added factor in the costs, he said, was for inflation.

Selectman James Miceli said that it was by an unanimous vote of the Board of Selectmen. Miceli also said that the board had voted unanimously for a sidewalk for Federal Street.

The sidewalk program now in existance, the TM said, was for Shawsheen Avenue, Burlington Avenue, Adams Street and Hopkins Street, with the Hopkins Street project being only in a preparatory stage.

Hopkins Street has a county layout, and utilizes Chapter 90 funds. (meaning state and county also pay for construction). The street, in the School Transportaiton Report, is Class I, meaning that it is one of the most dangerous streets.

The present importance of streets, Morris said, was Hopkins Street, Salem Street, Forest Street and Federal Street.

Federal Street has a Class II classification.

Morris told the Finance Committee that the petition for sidewalks on Federal Street had been signed not only by Federal Gardens residents but by some on Kenwood Avenue. The proposal was to build a sidewalk from Kenwood to the pedway of the Wildwood School, as well as from the other end of Federal Street.

Asphalt costs have gone up 60% Morris said, and added that there was no telling what might happen to the oil industry.

Tom Casey, vice chairman of the Finance Committee noted that the projected costs were $114,000 over that of previous years, and Arthur Spear (who lives on Burlington Avenud) said the town could cut out the project for a sidewalk on Burlington Avenue, which came to $24,600. Stop the work where it is now, he said, and the town could save $20 thousand. There is already a sidewalk on one side.

FinCom control

Mr. Casey made a point in that the Finance Committee did not have the control over the actual spending of the money, and that the Federal Gardens residents would have to keep up the pressure, if they wanted their project voted in the town meeting.

Mr. Spear asked why the project could not be done under betterments, and thus insure that the project would be where wanted.

Selectman Boylen explained the difference between that proposal and putting in a water main under betterments. "When I put in a water main its going to go by my house - that's my benefit. A sidewalk, that is in front of the house, and is for everyone's benefit."

$150,000 cost?

State to check plumbing at Deming Way housing project

A plumbing engineer is to be sent by the state housing board to check the plumbing at the Deming Way Housing project for the elderly of the Wilmington Housing Authority.

Richard Skerry, an engineer for the State Housing Board told chairman George Hooper of the WHA that he estimated repairs to the plumbing system could cost $150,000. The costs, he said, would come out of the state's emergency cost system.

"You are being nickled and dimed to death," he told Hooper. "We didn't believe you at first." He complimented Hooper for his continued push to get repairs done at the housing project.

Skerry also said he was going to ask that a check be made on the original work at the project, to see if it conformed to the original specifications.

There are still underground leaks in the heating system in addition to those already reported in the Town Crier. It is impossible to shut off the fresh water lines into the various buildings, because the valves, located under ground are "frozen." There is a continued difficulty with the leaching system.

All those things Skerry noted, and decided that the State Housing Board should take part in the inspection and repairs to the Deming Way project.

He told Hooper that it was a hard thing to find an underground leak in a hot water pipe, and that it was an easier task in the winter time, when the lack of snow would indicate escaping heat. The state housing board, he said, has discontinued the practice of burying hot water pipes underground. There have been difficulties in several projects.

Skerry also had some nice things to say about the Director, Henry Berrazzo of Tewksbury. Berrazzo does as much, he noted, as other housing directors who get three or four times as much money.

A $150,000 CHECK: Fo the Wilmington Housing Authority, is presented to Chairman George Hooper by Richard Skerry, of the State Department of Community Affairs. Housing Director Henry Berrazzo is in the center.

The money is to be used by the Wilmington Housing Authority to purchase private homes for the purpose of providing housing for low income families, and disabled persons, under the provisions of Chapter 705 of the Acts of 1966. Four such homes have already been purchased.

SPECTATORS: At the Finance Committee meeting included many from Federal Street.

Guy Schiavone Jr. in Mass. General

Guy Schiavone Jr., 17 of Kenwood Avenue Wilmington is in Massachusetts General Hospital as the result of an accident on Lowell Steeet at 1:18 am Sunday.

He had been taken to a Lowell hospital, but was transferred to Mass. General. At last reports, on Wednesday he was listed as being in fair condition.

Guy was driving a Chevrolet at the time of the accident, which was near Malloy Road. The other car, driven by Paul Capozzi of Chestnut Street was a Dodge Coronet. Capozzi suffered only minor injuries.

PBC members did not resign

None of the members of the Permanent Building Committee have submitted resignations to the Town Clerk in spite of statements made last week to Chairman Jim Miceli of the Wilmington Board of Selectmen. A nicely worded letter from Mr. Miceli to the members seems to have been effective.

The letter read: "I hope for the good of the town you will reconsider your decision to resign from the Permanent Building Committee.

During this very crucial period we need your expertise and integrity in order to bring to the Town Meeting a balanced picture regarding the ongoing planning program as it relates to our school system here in town.

I hope you will join with me in maintaining stability in our town government.

Yours very truly,
James R. Miceli, Chmn.

So far there has been no meeting of the Permanent Building Committee, since the appointment of a new member, a week ago.

Hide glue is the traditional woodworking glue of the old time craftsman. It is made in flake, strip and liquid form, and the price varies from low to medium to high.

It is not waterproof, and it weakens by dampness, but it is stronger than most woods, and is a good, easy to use gap filler type.

If you decide to use it in any project, ask for full instructions. The flake and strip forms must be soaked in just the right amount of water, then heated, and applied and clamped before cooling.

When oxen were beasts of burden

The Town Crier has a new volume entitled Commemorative Guide to the Massachusetts Bicentennial. It has a handsome cover, printed with four colors, showing the Battle of Lexington. There are 160 pages of information, not all of which pertains to events in the Revolutionary War. It is well thought out, and well written.

Not all pertains to the Revolution. There is a section devoted to the restoration of a Shaker Cemetery, for instance in the town of Harvard, and another devoted to the restoration of a blacksmith shop in Marshfield. The book is interesting, and the projects, reported and unreported in this column are being supported by the Massachusetts Bicentennial Commission. There is still $3 million to give away in funds, in community related bi-centennial projects, in what is termed matching funds - that is, the state matches the money raised by the local communities.

The deadline for application is December 5. Edward A. McColgan, the executive director, has already approved some $500,000 in projects.

It just so happens that when the writer opened the volume for inspection the first illustration seen was horrible, from a viewpoint of a New England farmer - Revolutionary, pre-Revolutionary, or post-Revolutionary. It depicted a workman carrying a stone of about one cubic feet from a stone drag to a stonewall, a distance of about five feet. To be seen too is the horse which provided the motive power for the drag.

The accompanying information tells that this was the way the early farmers cleared their fields and built the stonewalls of New England.

Horrible, horrible, horrible!

At a quick glance there are four errors in that illustration.

1. The New England farmers used oxen for motive power, especially in farming projects.

2. A workman, Colonial or modern, never picks up a stone he can roll. Granite weighs 155 pounds a cubic foot, and the person depicted is a prime candidate for a hernia, not to mention the fact that he is needlessly expending energy.

3. The New England farmers did not work singly, if they could help it, in the building of a stone wall. Three or four persons were involved, because many of the stones were four or five hundred pounds in weight, and some up to half a ton.

4. When the New England farmers, working in groups of two to four persons, arrived at a stonewall-a-building with a drag load of stones they did not park the drag five feet from the wall and then carry or roll the stones to the wall. They got as close to the wall as possible with their load because the less distance they had to move those stones the less muscle power would be involved.

Wilmington residents, of course, are familiar with old stone walls, to be found all over town. The town was entirely cleared of woodland during the Hop Era, and stonewalls, built by groups of men utilizing oxen for motive power are to be found almost anywhere.

That wasn't the only thing for which oxen were used. Asa Sheldon, during the War of 1812 made a trip to New York State using oxen to haul a load of hops, and then returned to Wilmington. He relates how he hid the money he had received in the ear of one of the oxen, in case he met a highwayman.

And don't forget Jimmy Butters, who was one of the best, when it came to raising oxen. Jimmy was the man who owned the Baldwin Apple, at the time of the construction of the Middlesex Canal.

Jimmy was the subject of a cartoon by Ripley, when that gentleman was alive, because Jimmy had swapped off a span of oxen for a new wife, new that is to Jimmy. It happened down in what is now Winchester Square.

Ripley wasn't just dreaming, either, when he told that story. Jimmy was one of the best in Wilmington, in raising oxen, and to his dying day he maintained that that particular "swap" was the best he had ever made.

The man who visited Vladivostok

President Ford is about to visit the city of Vladivostok, located in the far east of Soviet Russia.

As far as the Town Crier knows only one person who has been resident of Wilmington has ever visited that far eastern city - and that was as an aftermath of World War I.

During and after World War II George Spanos, who was dubbed Honorary Mayor of Wilmington and who had a restaurant in Wilmington Square with pictures, on the walls, of almost everyone in the service of Uncle Sam, so it was possible to have a semi-check on where the Wilmington boys and girls were located during and after that conflict. Not one of them, if memory serves correctly ever got to Vladivestek.

More recently the town has had Sterling Morris as Town Manager, and in World War II he was a crew member of the US bomber which was damaged in an air raid over Japan, and which landed in Soviet Russia, where Morris spent some months as an interned US soldier. But he didn't get to Vladivestek.

The man who did get to Vladivostok was named Hubert E. Cann, and he lived on Grove Avenue, number 142 if the Town Crier remembers correctly. he spent some months in that city as a consequence of the events which have been labeled the Revolution in Russia.

Mr. Cann, who worked at Lynn GE, was, fifty years ago the Scoutmaster of Troop I, Wilmington Boy Scouts. Today it is Troop 56, but the Charter was not in existance for a month or two, on one occasion, so that it does not have a continuous history back to 1916 or earlier when it was founded. Scoutmaster of that Troop before World War I was Philip Buzzell, now retired Town Counsel of Wilmington.

When Mr. Cann was the Scoutmaster the troop had the old West School for headquarters. It had formerly been the HQ for a Troop of State Police, in the days when the State Police rode horseback, and was an empty shell in 1923 when Mr. Cann and his Boy Scouts took it over and fixed it up. They occupied the building (for meetings, etc.) for several years, with HE, as he was known, doing a lot of the work of refurbishing the old building.

How did H.E. Cann happen to get to Vladivostok?

He was Canadian born, and in World War I he served in the Canadian Army. In the Memorial Day parades of about 1923, in Wilmington, he would appear in his Canadian uniform, which was always recognized as such, by some of the spectators, but some did know the difference.

Cann, at the end of the war, was in a contingent which was sent to Vladivostok, to keep that port out of communist hands. This was at the time when the Japanese were trying to find a pretext to annex the Russian lands, and when U.S. and British troops were in Murmansk, for the same reasons the Canadians were in Vladivostok.

Cann was a motorcycle - dispatch rider. As he reported it, he broke up two motorcycles, and the third broke him up.

For what it is worth, he was the only person, resident of Wilmington, who ever got to that place that President Ford will visit, known as Vladivostok.

THE NAME IS SEE MORE DANGER. That is the official name for the Dinosaur in the Wilmington Memorial Library. It was so named last Friday by John Shea of 24 Allen Park Drive and Diana Nealon of 43 Grace Drive. Diana is shown accepting second prize from Sarah Rueter, Children's Librarian, while John stands by.

Public Library will have a Bi-Centennial Room

There will be changes soon, in the Wilmington Public Library. The Director is to get a new office, near the front desk, for one thing. His office, which was in the back of the library, was becoming too crowded with projects of the assistant librarians.

Mr. Merriam is moving out, when the new office is completed, and leaving space for important work by other persons.

More important is that the Wilmington Library Board of Trustees and tme Wilmington Bi-Centennial Commission have agreed that the "small" room upstairs shall become the Bi-Centennial Room, in which books and objects relating to the Revolution may be stored for use by the public.

Such a project had been proposed some months ago, but was shot down, perhaps by the Finance Committee, perhaps by someone else, before it ever got to the Town Meeting.

Now the two committees, working together, have assured the town that such a room will be built. Part of the cost, at least, will be defrayed by the Commonwealth.

In their meeting with the selectmen the tow committees reiterated their unanimity of the thought, as though they were afraid the selectmen might say no.

The selectmen were more interested in learning whether or not there was to be a History of Wilmington written, particularly with reference to the Revolution. There were several hints, which seemed to be ignored.

Finally Selectman Boylen suggested that the editor of the Town Crier be employed to write suvh a history. The suggestion was turned down by the Bi-Centennial chairman, who told Boylen that he was getting a "young fellow" to do it. The "young fellow" was not further identified.

GLEN ROAD PARENTS APPOINT COUNCIL MEMBERS

The Glen Road Parents Club of Wilmington held its monthly meeting on November 13th. Council members appointed were:

Mrs. Mary Jane Ashley, chairman; Mrs. Dolores Medeiros, Treasurer; Mrs. Rosemary Mulick, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Ann Sullivan, secretary; and Mrs. Frances Schmitt, assistant secretary.

Plans were made for a Holiday Fair to be held on December 7 from 12 noon to 4 pm at the Glen Road School.

Raffle tickets for the 10 speed bike should be available on or about November 22nd. Those interested in participating in any manner or in making donations to the fair should contact Mrs. Schmitt at 658-3327. All will be welcome.

Town Manager has complete charge of Harnden Tavern

The Town Manager has complete charge of the Harnden Tavern, but the Wilmington Historical Committee will work on gathering material and historical items for the ancient building.

That in essence was what was said a week ago, in an exchange of opinions between the selectmen and members of the committee. A letter from Alan Altman, Town Counsel, said that only the Town Manager could have charge of the building, and that he was in complete control.

Hope Hathaway, one of the members of the Historical Committee, told the selectmen that some of the original papers, in charge of her cousin Alice, will remain in Alice's hands. The papers are too fragile to withstand any exchange, Miss Hathaway said.

The papers are now in Waltham.

WALTER KOHLER, Chairman of the Historical Committee, at the Selectmen's table, last week.

The Wilmington Minute Men Gave Blood, Sunday

The Wilmington Minutemen have other avocations than being off to fight the Regulars at the drop of their captain's hat. Sometimes they march in parades. Sometimes they act as Guards of Honor, at military and semi-military functions. Sometimes they attend parties for various functions and charities.

Whenever possible they line up to give blood. They donate to the Red Cross, and to the Massachusetts General Hospital. The Minutemenmof Wilmington are probably foremost in their home town, when it comes to being blood donors.

Last Sunday it was to the Massachusetts General, to donate blood. Ten Minute Men, and some of their ladies donated.

VISITED PAPA GINO'S

Cub Den Two, Pack 136, Wilmington was treated to a "behind the scenes" look at Papa Gino's Restaurant at Oakdale Mall in Tewksbury recently.

This was a different type of activity for Den Two. It gave them a unique opportunioy to see how a restaurant like this operates said Manager Dan Godell.

Highlight of the visit was a pizza making demonstration in which eight year old Kevin Backman of Den Two was chosen as the student who received instruction from Mr. Goedell and made an actual Papa Gino's pizza for the group.

According to Den Leaders Mrs. LoVetere and Mrs. Metcalfe, the group enjoyed the adventure very much and Kevin's pizza was delicious.

BOB BAVOTA HAS ONE GAME TO GO

BOB BAVOTA, FULL BACK: Wilmington High School. He is the leading ground gainer in the Merrimack Valley Conference, with a total of 963 yards to date. Recs snap losing streak

Nashua, N.H.: The Wilmington Recs scored three times in the opening period and went on to defeat Tewksbury, 3 - 0 in a MVGHL encounter played at the Nashua Gardens last Saturday evening. Coach Backman's sextet had gone through a four game winless drought prior to the win over the Tacks.

Janet Carlton led the Recs with a pair of goals, while Laura Miller and Cheryl Jensen had a goal and two assists each. Captain Julie Wallace chipped in with her second personal marker. Other assists went to Karen Surrette and Maureen Sughrue. Cathy Briston turned back eleven Tacks shots to preserve her initial victory of the season.

The REcs are now sporting a 3 - 6 overall mark on the season, 2 - 4 in MVGHL play. On Wednesday, November 13th the girls lost a non-league game to Stoneham by the count of 3 - 2. Joan Welch continued her torrid scoring spree as she tallied both Wilmington markers to bring her seasonal total to six.

This Saturday night at the Gardens, Tewksbury skates against Shawsheen at five o'clock, while the Recs face-off against Hudson at 6:15. Next Wednesday, Thanksgiving Eve, the Wilmington girls travel to Stoneham in their third non-league match with the Spartans.

Chris Turner and John Robson each scored with one assist each going to Aman, Smith and Harding. Jim Smith scored the final two goals both from Turner and Curran.

Wilmington's high number of shots on net were made possible by the strong point work of the six defensemen. Dan Allard narrowly missed his first goal of the year when he banged a hard wrist shot off the right goal post as his strong point work allowed him to shoot frequently against Reading's goalie.

Goalies Laquidara and Redler again kept the opposition honest as they turned away all but one of Reading's shots.

Ed Giroux opened the scoring in the third period. The opponents returned with one, but Robinson scored to maintain the lead. Wakefield lit the lamp for two in a row to narrow the lead, but Tim McCann iced the game with 11 seconds on the clock as he hit the vacant Wakefield net. Final 6 - 4 Wilmington - again the local goalies were super, turning aside 31 shots.

On Sunday the locals journied to Tyngsboro where they are undefeated, to hand Westford an 8 - 3 defeat. Spotting their opponents a two goal lead, the locals led by Robinson and Paul Boudreau (two each) Don Foley, McCann, Giroux and Bob Greenberg (one each) left no doubt that they want the league trophy.

Radio station offers library related shows

A new concept in radio broadcasting began Monday, November 18 over WLTI, 91.5 FM at noon. The Lowell area Council on Interlibrary Networks has been funded under a Title III Special Program Grant to utilize facilities at Lowell Technological Institute for a variety of public service programs.

The project will include three major programs and several featurettes. Among the featurettes will be audience participation spots entitled: Happenings, A Community Calendar, The Work Shop, a part-time and temporary job excahnge and specials on consumer tips, book reviews and historic vignettes.

From 12:30 - 1 pm Afternoon Agenda will offer a mixture of openlines and interviews covering a wide range of topics. In the first weeks Charles Jarvis and Attorney Allen Gerson will discuss subjects of interest to Lowellians.

Author John Wallace Spencer will offer his thoughts on disappearances in the Bermuda Triangle, and several other programs will include Middlesex Extension Service, discussion of Health and any number of other subjects.

The School Bag is of wide interest to parents and community members with an interest in learning. A variety of guests from parent groups, educational institutions and students themselves will be included in considerations of all aspects of learning and the learning environment.

The final feature of the day will run from 2:30 through 3:00 pm and is entitled: Heritage. This show will feature the language and traditions of the peoples of the Merrimack Valley. Mrs. Jean Schott, as Missey Juana, will offer stories and fun activities for youngsters through grade three. Entitled la Hora de Cuento, it will focus on the Spanish speaking community.

For the French community, the Rev. Armand Morissette, Jr. of St. Jean de Baptiste Parish, will host a weekly program. FAther Spike will offer music, interviews, news and events of interest to the general community and the French listeners, along with highlights on the French culture. Other groups will be included over the programming period.

Lacoin is a voluntary alliance of public school and college libraries in the Greater Lowell area. Organized in 1973 the library network is its first major undertaking.

Member libraries will participate in this project with exhibits and programs and will seek to involve their communities in making this a truly public station.

The programming hours will expand to 8 a.m. through 3 p.m. by mid-December and plans for additional original programs will be announced as the project evolves.

For further information, contact Elisabeth Desmarais at Tewksbury's Patten Public Library.

CAR CORNER

by Bob Bagnulo and Joe Casey

The rubber on the blade of your wind shield wiper is very thin to allow adequate flexing as the blade reverses direction with each sweep across the window.

If wipers are turned on when they are frozen to the glass, the fine rubber edge can be harmed and the wipers will not work to keep the windshield dry.

On occasion, a wiper blade can be so damaged that the bare metal rubs against the windshield, causing bad scrapes - wipers are important, use yours with care and be sure to replace them when they are worn!

Be sure to call on WILMINGTON FORD, 275 Main St., Rte. 38, Wilmington, 658-6800 when you are in the market for a new or used car or truck. Your friend and neighbor, our integrity and reliability are well known to you, and there's no better deal anywhere; our prices prove it. Our service and parts department is one of the area's largest to assure you of the finest in service. Open: sales, 9-10 Mon-Fri; 9-6 Sat; service, 7:30-9 Mon-Fri; 7:30-5 Sat.

Helpful hint

Never just add water to windshield wipers - detergent action is necessary to keep windshields clean.

Sen. MacKenzie wants lower electric bills

Sen. Ronald C. MacKenzie recently announced that he was joining with consumers for lower electric rates in a statewide effort to gather signatures on initiative petitions. The initiative petition calls for the establishment of a Massachusetts Power Authority to provide lower cost electric power to consumers and businesses in the Commonwealth.

"In the last year, electric bills in Massachusetts have skyrocketed, creating real hardship for the elderly, the working man, the family with moderate of fixed income, and those families who were convinced by utility ads to buy an all electric home. If Massachusetts is to improve its sagging economy, a way must be found to put an end to ever spiraling rate increases," said MacKenzie of Burlington.

The Massachusetts Power Authority created by the initiative petition would be responsible for building new power plants in the Commonwealth. The electricity from these plants would be sold to presently existing utilities for distribution to consumers.

A study by RW Beck and Associates, a national utility consulting firm, estimated that the Authority could cut Massachusetts' electric bills by more than $200 million a year.

"Despite the fuel adjustment clause legislation approved last year, electric bills have continued to go up. More rate increases are expected early next year. It is imperative that a way be found to provide electric power, which is a basic necessity and public service, at rates which people can afford," the Senator said.

For the initiative petition to succeed, its sponsor must gather 56,000 signatures by December 4. According to Consumers for Lower Electric Rates, the statewide organization organizing the petition effort, over 10,000 signatures have already been collected.

"I believe it is important for all citizens concerned with their electric bills to join with me in this effort. The only way the present structure will be reformed is if consumers take the lead in bringing their case before the Legislature," he said.

Anyone interested in signing or helping circulate petitions is urged to contact Senator MacKenzie at his State House office.
